Czech Technical University (CTU) and the British Embassy in Prague are teaming up to host the Prague Summer Conference on IP and Innovation, which runs all day September 13-14.

Topics of focus will include bridging the gap between academia and industry, promoting intellectual property rights for business, commercialization of knowledge and research results, and finance and marketing technology transfer.

Nearly a dozen speakers from CTU as well as business leaders like Vladislav Jež, managing partner of JV Capital Management, and Radek Špicar, director of external affairs for Škoda Auto a.s. will present lectures on the various topics.

Late registration is still possible on the website <http://www.cebbis.eu/conference/registration.html> and tickets for non-CTU staff cost 100 Euros or 2,500 Kč.

The list of participants includes business and university representatives from all over Europe and the event promises to be not only a useful exchange of industry best practices and offer a glimpse of future trends, but also to promote CTU and its researchers to the international community.
